Historical Note

The town of Collins, Arkansas, was first called Cut-Off as it was located just west of Cut-Off Creek in Drew County. Collins was a stage coach stop, and by 1872 it had a terminal for the railroad. This trade route was an important stop for cotton, hogs, and timber products. It was incorporated as a town in 1892. The town elected officials and aldermen to a town council, the legislative body that governed the town limits. These individuals were elected to ensure the town fulfilled its obligations to its citizens.

Scope and Contents

This collection contains the record book for Collins, Arkansas, for 1892-1908. This record book contains ordinances, minutes, records, lists of officers, and accounts for the town. It was found among the effects of Mr. John Larkin, who owned a farm in Drew County, Arkansas, outside of Collins.
